No Exit (French: Huis Clos, pronounced) is a 1944 existentialist French play by Jean-Paul Sartre.The original title is the French equivalent of the legal term in camera, referring to a private discussion behind closed doors.The play was first performed at the Théâtre du Vieux-Colombier in May 1944. The play begins with three characters who find themselves waiting in a mysterious room.

No Exit - Wikipedia

No Exit. Three damned souls, Garcin, Inez, and Estelle are brought to the same room in hell by a mysterious Valet. They had all expected medieval torture devices to punish them for eternity, but instead find a plain room furnished in Second Empire style. None of them will admit the reason for their damnation: Garcin says that he was executed for being a pacifist, while Estelle insists that a mistake has been made.

"No Exit" is his most famous play, and justifiably so. It is a classic one-act play that places three people in "Hell" together. As the action develops, it becomes clear that their torments are not the fire and brimstone of medieval imagining. Rather, they are tormented by each other, or as Sartre states succinctly, "Hell is--other people."

No Exit and Three Other Plays by Jean-Paul Sartre, Albert ...

The three main characters, and to a lesser extent the Valet, have qualities and motives fascinating to dissect. No Exit, despite its cynical characters, serves less as the hopeless look at human nature some seem to believe it is and more as a reminder of the danger of self-absorption and misanthropy. Plus, it entertains all the way through.
