I fit that windlass to Goblin's foredeck camber with a wooden pad. Because of the open mechanism of Meg's windlass, I used two pads with a washway between. This is a bit easier to make but I think with the SL 555 a pad matching the windlass's footprint makes more sense. The remarks about reinforcing under the deck really matter.

Wondertime came equipped with a manual Simpson Lawrence Seatiger 555 windlass. (For the non-boaties: this is basically a big winch that lives on the bow whose job is to hoist up hundreds of feet of our anchor chain and our 55 lb. anchor when it's time to move on. "Manual" means it uses arm power, not electricity, to get the job done.)
