Okay, you're probably wondering what I'm talking about (if you haven't noticed the title of the post...). I've just finished reading Mohja Kahf's book "The Girl in the Tangerine Scarf." It's about Khadra Shamy, the daughter of Syrian immigrants to Indianapolis, whose parents become heavily involved with the Da'wah Centre.

The Girl in the Tangerine Scarf - Book Review ...

Her tangerine scarf represents her connection to Teta, Syria and her quest to find herself. When Khadra takes off her scarf in Syria, she is shedding the old, judgmental, black-and-white Khadra. In putting on a tangerine scarf, she is embracing her new, improved, tolerant self. She literally goes from black to color.
