In particular, the study explains the causes of the Huk rebellion, a rural uprising that raged across central Luzon in the Philippines from 1946 to the early 1950s. Kerkvliet shows that some causes of the rebellion can be traced to adverse agrarian conditions in the 1920s. Other causes were government and landlords' hostile responses to peasants' organizations and increasing electoral strength in the 1930s and mid 1940s.

Between 1946 and 1952, the government of the Philippines fought against a tenacious foe called the Hukbalahap or Huk (pronounced roughly like "hook"). The guerrilla army got its name from a contraction of the Tagalog phrase Hukbo ng Bayan Balan sa Hapon, meaning "Anti-Japanese Army."

The Hukbalahap Rebellion in the Philippines

The Hukbalahap, or Hukbong Laban sa Hapon, was a socialist/communist guerrilla movement formed by the farmers of Central Luzon. They are popularly known as the "Huks". They were originally formed to fight the Japanese, but extended their fight into a rebellion against the Philippine government, known as the Hukbalahap Rebellion, in 1946. It was put down through a series of reforms and military victories by the Philippines' Secretary of National Defense, and later President, Ramon Magsaysay. A mo
